Dear Macmillan I will think it will be some time to You will have heard possibly through Newton of our doings & how the expedition has gone off, and now I am just starting from Smyrna homewards owing to a change we were forced to make in our plans which has of course terminated my stay here before the time expected.

I had expected to find the remittance allowed for my home journey here but I suppose you did not think it could be needed so soon

However Ramsay has forwarded me money from the amount paid for the excursion and I have no doubt it will come to the same thing. There was no time to ask my father to send me anything before I leave.

Hoping to see you soon & tell you of our doings.

I remain
Yours very sincerely
