

about his book on Ancient Art.

^{not sent} I enclose a copy of the Minister's letter to Mommsen.

I always pressed you not to think of asking any subscription until you could mention what Mommsen says about the Delphic stone, and I think it was right to delay for this end.

Always yours truly

P. S. No money has arrived. I had to lend Hagarth £10, & the Bank has given me £40 on credit.

My dear Pelham,

It occurred to me last night that, as Mommsen expressly says in his letter that we are at liberty to make public in the papers this act of the German Government, it might be wise to do so. It would make a subscription easier, & in itself justify one. The international side of the Fund is worth a word.

First companion an American.
I have always sent notice to Mommsen of every discovery affecting the enterprises of the Berlin Academy, & Perrot
