My Dear Macmillan,

I have been detained in town all the week, very much against my will, by some private business that could not be neglected; but I have made all my arrangement to leave town a, Monday, shall probably be absent for a month -

I don't at all like this demand for £70: - our friend Pursey is evidently no man of business, not so bad as Chas. Rowden I hope, but still very unsatisfactory - It may be difficult to calculate & to let us know how often he wants money, but to leave it to his wife to make the demand for him a not business — !

We cannot however fairly refuse to send it, or we may jeopardize the whole affair. If I were present at the meeting you propose calling I certainly wish to send it, but make a note to be more careful in future. Yrs.
I use therefore my authority 'valeat quantum' to send him about 70.

while I remain

Yours
J. H. Reynolds
